THE FEDERAL SAVINGS BANK
Co. NMLS# 411500
Member FDIC

Ted Rood
Branch Manager, Gen Way Home Mortgage
NMLS #543290
O Fallon, Missouri 63368

Office: 3147400004
Mobile: 314-740-0004
ted_rood@yahoo.com

A Message from Ted Rood:

"It's starting to appear that Fed rate hikes are a forgone conclusion. Can Friday's jobs' report change that?"

The Week Ahead: Light Data, But NFP Friday--Will it Matter?

Last week saw economic data take a definitive back seat to Fed speeches--particularly Tuesday's comments from NY Fed President Dudley. It wasn't that Dudley said anything that other Fed speakers hadn't. Rather it was a combination of factors. First and foremost, Dudley has always been pragmatic, level-headed, and balanced in his assessment of upcoming policy potential. His comments are infrequent and rarely convey a strong bias.

This time, not only was there bias, but it was worded rather decisively--as if to say that there is already strong consensus within the Fed's inner sanctum. He specifically referenced the "case for tightening" being "a lot more compelling" than it had been. 2 weeks earlier, he had still been expressing a bit of lingering uncertainty.

The net effect of Dudley's comments was a rapid repricing of Fed rate hike probability. As we've discussed at length in the past week, markets are effectively pricing-in the highest possible probability. Fed Funds futures are at an astounding 84% chance (and they never go to 100%).

1-month overnight indexed swaps have risen 16bps over the past 3 weeks. They typically rise 20bps in the 4 weeks leading up to any Fed rate hike and thus are perfectly on pace to be at 20bps when next week's meeting hits. This is the "smart money" and it is very much like a crystal ball that makes Fed Funds Futures irrelevant.

Bottom line, the billions of dollars a day of interbank money that's swapped on a short term basis is saying a rate hike is 100% likely.

With all that in mind, is there anything left for markets to trade? Does economic data make any difference at all? What about this Friday's NFP?

Simply put, economic data (and anything else for that matter) would have to be utterly shocking to have a material impact on trading levels heading into next week's Fed meeting. "Material" in this case would refer to a convincing break outside the 3-month range. NFP would have to be catastrophically weak to cast any doubt on a hike. Even then, it would be a tall order. Markets

MBS and Treasury

	Price / Yield	Change
MBS UMBS 6.0	98.70	0.00
10 YR Treasury	5.1266	-0.0076
30 YR Treasury	5.4752	-0.0006

Pricing as of: 11/16 7:30PM EST

Average Mortgage Rates

	Rate	Change	Points
Mortgage News Daily
30YR Fixed	7.51%	+0.01	0.00
15YR Fixed	7.04%	+0.01	0.00
30YR FHA	7.08%	+0.03	0.00
30YR Jumbo	7.52%	+0.02	0.00
7/6 SOFR	7.12%	-0.01	0.00
30YR VA	7.10%	+0.03	0.00

Rates as of: 11/16

© 2026 MBS Live, LLC. - This newsletter is a service of MarketNewsletters.com.

The interest rates provided in this newsletter are national averages from independent data sources. Rate/APR terms may differ from those listed above based on the creditworthiness of the borrower. All information provided "as is" for informational purposes only, not intended for trading purposes or financial advice.

Read or subscribe to my newsletter online at: http://mortgageratesupdate.com/tedrood are far more interested in the Fed's updated economic projections (which is the thing that really did the damage this past December, as opposed to the rate hike itself).

Subscribe to my newsletter online at: http://mortgageratesupdate.com/tedrood

Responsive service, experienced expertise

I've dedicated my 26 year mortgage career to client education, superior service, and honest answers. The lending landscape has changed dramatically the past few years, and continues to do so. My job is to ensure client partners' loans close quickly, without surprises, and I take that responsibility very seriously. Referrals are a responsibility I appreciate; they're a measure of trust, and that trust must be earned every day, on every referral.

Ted Rood

© 2026 MBS Live, LLC. - This newsletter is a service of MarketNewsletters.com.

The interest rates provided in this newsletter are national averages from independent data sources. Rate/APR terms may differ from those listed above based on the creditworthiness of the borrower. All information provided "as is" for informational purposes only, not intended for trading purposes or financial advice.

Read or subscribe to my newsletter online at: http://mortgageratesupdate.com/tedrood