Big Jump in Rates Not Hitting Mortgage Apps... Yet

Mortgage rates rose sharply during the week ended November 6. Most contract rates had an average basis point increase near double digits, returning to levels last seen in August and September. Mortgage application volume declined, but the overall response was unremarkable with most components dipping only a percentage point or two.

The Mortgage Bankers Association (MBA) reported that its Market Composite Index, a measure of application volume, was down 1.3 percent from the week ended October 30 on a seasonally adjusted basis and decreased 2.0 percent unadjusted.

MBA headlined its press release "Refinance Applications Decrease" and they did, although by only 2 percent from the previous week while the refinance share of applications inched up by 10 basis points to slightly under 60 percent. The seasonally adjusted Purchase Index rose 0.1 percent by dropped by 3 percent unadjusted when compared to the previous week. The unadjusted Purchase Index was 18 percent higher than during the same week in 2014.

Respondents include mortgage bankers, commercial banks and thrifts. Base period and value for all indexes is March 16, 1990=100. Interest rate data is based on loans with an 80 percent loan-to-value ratio and points include the origination fee.

Responsive service, experienced expertise

I've dedicated my 22 year mortgage career to client education, superior service, and honest answers. The lending landscape has changed dramatically the past few years, and continues to do so. My job is to ensure client partners' loans close quickly, without surprises, and I take that responsibility very seriously. Referrals are a responsibility I appreciate; they're a measure of trust, and that trust must be earned every day, on every referral.
